

How can you contribute to your dream private school? – Pearl – 232 words

Here are a few ways I can contribute to my dream private school. First up, friendly and approachable. I joined Rouse Hill Public School just this year and my parents were worried if I would make friends. They were pleasantly surprised that I have tons of friends there. I'm sure the school would benefit with from someone who's friendly.

Secondly, trustworthy trustworthiness. You can trust me to be punctual. I'll never miss anything. Part of being trustworthy is being a team player, and that's just what I am. I'm very cooperative and I listen to everyone's ideas. In a school, we can't have everyone talking over each other, can we?

Another one of the traits is a chatterbox. My dad says I go on and on about anything and everything. My friends say I'm also a good listener, as I listen to their problems. So if my peers ever need to talk something out, or just want someone to listen, I'm always there, no matter if the problem is big or small. This trait is an amazing one to have as I will provide emotional support to those who need it.

These are only a few of the many ways I will contribute to my dream private school.

We are being assigned leadership roles this year, so I can't say if I'll get one.

That is great to know about your personality traits and how you can utilise those to contribute to the particular school.

As far as the leadership role is concerned you may point out some of the qualities you have got and how you can utilise those in the teamwork being a leader or coach.

Mention what it takes to be a leader and how a leader must utilise his strategic thinking and communication skills to add value to that particular institution.

Hope you find this feedback fruitful, keep up the hard work!
