(I replaced the words in the exemplar with synonyms)

It would be best if you include the title of your essay here.

The city is the throbbing heart of our society, the fountain of our culture and commerce. It is the place where we come together, to share our laughter and tears, to have an exceptional time and to learn from each other. But, it is also a place where inequality is off the scale, where many communities struggle for basic resources and quality of life.

The question then arises: what is the essential need for our cities? A new shopping mall or a community centre?

The answer is clear. We must invest in the power of community, in the might of our people, and in the hope of our spirit. A community centre will bring rejuvenating resources to our city's most vulnerable and underrated populations, while a shopping mall will only increase the wealth of a few already privileged individuals.

We must invest in the power of education. A community centre will provide educational resources and beacons to our youth, allowing them to learn and prosper. It will provide a risk-free location to go after school, where children can dive deeper into their interests and continue their education. It will also provide job training and career advice, giving our citizens the chance to find worthwhile employment.

We must invest in the power of health. A community centre will provide fundamental medical care and nutrition counselling to those in need. It will provide mental health aid and counselling services, allowing our citizens to tackle the struggles of everyday life. It will also provide physical activity and exercise programs, allowing our citizens to remain fresh and active.

Finally, we must invest in the power of community. A community centre will provide a hub for our citizens to come together to share their stories and experiences, to build relationships and to strengthen the bonds of our community. It will provide outlets for creative expression, allowing our citizens to express themselves in a protected and welcoming environment. It will also provide recreational activities, allowing our citizens to bond with one another and have fun.

Ultimately, the choice is clear. A community centre is far more worth investing in than a new shopping mall. It will bring essential resources and outlets to our citizens, allowing them to live healthier, more prosperous lives. It will also provide a place for our citizens to come together and build relationships, strengthening our community and our city.

Let us make the wise choice and invest in the power of community. Let us build community centres in our cities, bringing essential resources and outlets to our citizens. Let us come together to build a brighter future for our city.

Note:

The structure of this essay is good. However, when it comes to the strength of the arguments, you have a mistake there. You need to supplement them with proper evidence. For every reason that you have for choosing the community center, back it up with proper evidence in order to make them strong and credible. You can opt for anecdotes or other forms of evidence. Lastly, restate the reasons of this preference in the concluding section. Use interesting words when restating them.
