

I am filled with disgust as I see the tonnes of plastic waste, rotting away in the pacific ocean. It is our unwavering moral duty to protect the land which we live on for future generations. Our precious sea life is lacerated with floating lifeless bags made of plastic. Fish and coral alike are suffering under the tyrannous reign of plastic. Single-use plastic, to put it simply, is a perilous hazard which we cannot risk having floating about. Desolate islands of filth, human contamination and death traps for marine life are constantly floating around in the sea and air. Animals are dying and they are suffering. I dream of a day and age where all animals are free from the chains and grasps of pollution. I dream of a time where animals don't suffer from human soilage but strive in a sanctuary of liveliness.

Introduction is already very interesting. However, i was hoping that you could have added already your own solid standpoint for this persuasive essay.

is this piece in 3rd POV or 2nd POV? Be clear with this Single use plastics such as plastic bags, forks, spoons, knives and straws are one of the world's largest pollutants. A percentage of the epipelagic zone is smothered in a layer of plastics. Millions of sea creatures mistake these floating atrocities as jellyfish. One or two animals might have died because of your folly! Imagine an innocent, sinless animal, choking to death as the malevolent tendrils of plastic slowly draw out the last vessels of life left inside its tormented soul. Research has shown that it takes plastic hundreds of years to finally break down and become unable to kill. However, in those hundreds of years, thousands of animals could have perished. How can you rest knowing that even when you have died, your plastic waste would be ending the righteous souls of fish? Entire ecosystems are collapsing. Entire habitats are crumbling under human greed. Entire families of creatures are slowly going extinct. We must ban single use plastics.

Beyond the fields of sea pollution, single use plastics are being produced in a harmful way. This mass produced killer is born under the pillars of caliginous smoke. Gas emissions are the aftermath of plastic. The process in which you make plastic is creating another harmful, pernicious pollutant. Swirling masses of pain dance through the air. Searching for its next victim. Gas and the remnants of fossil fuels are pumped into the pure air. Towering pillars of asphyxiating smoke are rising into the air right as you are reading this. Exacerbating the world's already climbing temperatures. As a result of our laziness, these clouds of tenebrous, ebony smoke are smothering birds and humans in a layer of impurity. How can you rest knowing that we are destroying this utopia? This is already great but add more factual info next time.

Well, even if we do ban this 'preposterous' plastic, how will we carry our groceries? How will we be able to make straws? How will we be able to use food containers? Well, those problems are being solved. Carrying your groceries can now be done by using recyclable paper bags. Paper is a substance which will dissolve quickly and won't be taking the lives of sinless animals. Companies are now making metal straws which can be used again and again. Metal straws can be crushed and melted from their original shape and turned into other useful objects. Food containers, for example, can be made out of glass. All of these examples are better and more sustainable than floating killers waiting for another throat to choke.

To summate, we must ban these single use plastics. Killers, spreading misery throughout these animals. The world is dying. Oceans are preparing for their last and final breaths. The air is perishing. People and animals alike are drowning beneath the tendrils of greenhouse gasses. We need to ban the plastics which are constantly killing away at the helpless creatures. Millions of tonnes of plastic are being thrown into the ocean without a second glance. Killing off millions of animals. The food chain is collapsing. Entire ecosystems are turning gray and drawing their last breaths. Smoke is billowing out of stone pillars, right now as we speak. How are we supposed to rest when we know that the world is dying? We will only rest when we know that single use plastics are banned!

This is a very emotional piece. I can feel the passion from your standpoint here however, it should be better if you already had your standpoint mentioned in the first paragraph of your essay, that way the readers will have an idea what this piece is all about. Besides that, to make this a lot more convincing, always add FACTUAL information. Do research with related topics and from there you can work your way through in choosing an info fit for this piece.
