

Part 1 prompt 1

Do not forget to add the title of your essay.

The city is the pounding heart of our neighbourhood, the foundation of our culture and economy for our citizens. It is the place where we gather together, and share our laughter and tears, to have an amazing time and learn from each other. An opportunity to socialise and make friends with others while still. But our city has a weakness, it is a place of extreme equality with families having difficulty even eating something every day while there are people who have mass riches. We have wealthy and affluent people spending their riches and squandering it away, isolating themselves from the less fortunate people who struggle to receive basic resources and quality of life.

Merge these two since they belong to the introductory part.

From this a crucial question arises: what is more important for our city and community, a new shopping mall or a community centre?

The answer is crystal clear. We must invest our time and money in erecting a new community centre, which will be the heart and strength of our people, empowering young minds and giving hope in spirit that they will succeed. A community centre will bring much deserved and needed money to the poor and vulnerable population with basic food, money, education, health and hope and a feeling of belonging. While Shopping malls will only further separate the gap between privileged and unprivileged individuals, only the affluent can afford to squander their money there.

Use another phrases.

We must invest in the power of community and the feeling of being in a safe and inclusive environment. Community centres are a place where people can come together and have fun, share stories and strengthen the relationships between different households. It can influence the less privileged individual by having a place where they can feel included and welcomed, with no one judging them or not welcoming them. It is shown by research that people who are involved with community centres and on regular intervals participate in its activities, they will be generally happier than those who do not, rich or not rich. You may say that shopping malls also provide this rich and impressive opportunity but they do not, only influencing further isolation from the richer members of the city's insatiable thirst for more wealth while less privileged are left to only just watch them.

Furthermore, it will be invested for the power of health. Community centres are an opportunity to participate in sports and exercise regimes, which will allow our citizens to remain fit and have fun at the same time. Community centres will provide the essential healthcare that would otherwise be very expensive and out of reach for most citizens but community centres can provide the basic version of it. Community centres since they will feel involved, this will improve mental health since they feel like they are loved and welcomed in a positive environment. It will also help social health since you can interact with others in your community.

In addition, community centres will be able to provide education. It is an opportunity to access books and other learning sources allowing young children or adults to learn extensively and be able to learn for free. Schools could not completely cover a topic so they could come to a community centre to read to answer their question or ask senior members of the community for answers. This education can help inspire citizens to see what their future job will be and what they are passionate about and getting advice from people who are in that career path. It can help them get job experience and more people who can help you pursue your dream job who have achieved that already.

I would like to clear any disbelief about community centres and show why shopping malls are detrimental to society. This is because they waste so many resources, energy and just things like food scraps. According to a ^{good} website called Onbuy, 12 million tonnes of waste are produced every year by a shopping mall and that's not including the mass loss of energy from heaters and air conditions running through open doors, the unnecessary bright lights running day and night and many more things.

To conclude, the choice is crystal clear, community centres are superior to shopping malls. It is a place where citizens can gather and share knowledge, important outlets for our citizens and promote a healthy and prosperous lifestyle while shopping malls offer nothing positive. Let us make the smarter choice and invest in a community centre for our future generations. Let's share our knowledge and wisdom through the years to come.

Note:

This is a very good essay. You were able to defend that a community centre is better than shopping malls. The reasons for the said preference are also backed up with evidence. However, you ought to make the introduction more organised. Write the thesis statement or question together with the first paragraph. Lastly, do not forget to add title to this work.
