

Prompt 4 27/1/23

A reign of Tyranny: Homework.

Picture a forlorn, disconsolate dystopia, students eager to go outside and play are ~~stripped~~ of their rights. It is our moral duty to allow these kids to express themselves and play. Incarcerated behind the malevolent chains of homework, students are unable to grasp free time. Instead, they are subjected to hours of strenuous, tortuous revision and questions. How can you stand these innocent children slaving at the hands of this cruel school system? Homework across the world must be banned!

Zealous zephyrus mingle outside the students' grasp. A day full of benevolent sunshine, wasted indoors. Doing what? Doing what teachers call 'necessary revision'. Students who are coerced to finish their homework spend hours upon hours, locked inside, toiling away at this 'necessary revision'. Think about the powerless children, their minds wasting time while physical exercise awaits them. ^{period} School ^{comma} children spend 6-7 hrs a day studying at school. So why force these innocent kids to labourous amounts of projects at home? This is a flagrant disregard of human rights. These children should be able to socialise and play to their hearts content when they finish school.

You need to cite researches that talk about the negative effects of homeworks here.

Another reason homework for students should be abolished is because it degrades and erodes ~~at a students~~ ^{the students'} physical abilities. Students are ~~incarcerated~~ ^{use another word, do not repeat} within the shackles of this oppressive behaviour. Students are forced to complete homework before doing anything else. Spending time outside and playing is crucial to a students personal well-being. Taking a well earned break from the arduous hours of school gives children time to relax their mind. Exercising is becoming a larger problem as these children are placed under the malevolent burden of completing their homework. How can you stand knowing these children are becoming fatuous drones at the expense of human folly. Homework is stripping children of their rights, we need a call to end this unjust oppression. We need to address this dire situation.

cite evidentiary support to strengthen your argument.

You may argue that homework creates an easy way to revise and grasp newfound knowledge. However, families who are outgoing and focus on sporting achievements are forced to change schedules to accommodate time to finish homework. Picture the agony of a child yearning to go outside. Yet homework binds it's manipulative, sly chains around his/her mind, locking him in place. Homework should only be available for those students who want to take their education further. This disregard of rights has a ray of ebbing hope. An easy fix for schools and homework is to grant those families not wishing their children to do homework no homework.

Desperate, atrocious hours of slavery are being overlooked as these wordless victims of school torture are teiling away. This disgusting violation of rights needs to stop. How can you ignore this crisis. We need to ban homework once and for all.

Note:

This is a well-written essay. However, it is weak in nature. You won't convince your audience by making statements without solid evidence to back it up. Therefore, support the main points of your analysis with textual evidence taken from your source material. The evidence could come in many forms such as surveys, statistics, news, reports, articles, examples, and other verifiable source of information. Also, be certain to cite accordingly to avoid being at risk of plagiarism. Mark: 48/50