

Prompt 3 27/1/23

A moral duty: Sporting Complexes.

A dystopia of agony. A world of reining laziness. Groups of ill people, begging for exercise. How will people stay fit and healthy without a playful way to exercise? A new sports complex will be the cornerstone of health for the local community. An accessible place to lose calories and stay fit. What good is a police station providing when it comes to the overall well being of the community?

Incarcerated behind wrought bars, tendrils of despair constantly seep into the hopeless community. Police stations thrive with wrongdoers and creates an atmosphere of malevolence within the neighborhood. However, sport complexes bond the desperate local citizens as they continue to stay active. It is a moral duty to provide eager citizens with a way to ^{be} energetic. Envisage a hellhole where demoralized people are emaciated from their athletic dreams. Deprived of a bond with the community. We need to realise the importance and essentiality of creating a prosperous connection in sports.

Another reason building a sports complex will be beneficial is because it raises the depleting overall health of these suffering victims deprived of physical exertion. The constant degradation of health is prominent within older communities, people need the freedom to exercise. This oppression is unjust and cruel. Don't you realise that building a sports complex will boost health levels? Don't you see these emaciated suffering victims of lack in physical activity pitiable? Building a sporting complex is crucial to our society. Think about the children, suffering under the malevolent, manipulative hands of the government. Stripped of their rights to exercise, we need to act. Building more police stations instills fear and oppression amongst people. The ebbing flow of hope for a healthier community cannot cease. We need action now.

In this day and age, phones and other devices are eroding and eating away at our minds. Mindlessly scrolling away has become our disconsolate reality. Promotion of exercise has become one of our biggest priorities. Picture the devastation caused by ignoring this dire crisis. Building a sports complex gets people to be involved in sufficient exercise. The vile, corrupt tendrils of laziness will be lacerated from the eager community. This situation is a flagrant disregard of fairness. Promoting a world of physical activeness is essential for the well being of this society.

You could cite researches that show the negative effects of infinite scrolling at social media to make your argument more painful.

In the conclusion, summarise the points being made in the body section.

Police stations. Sports complex. It is obvious which one will be the foundation of society. Police stations are a so called 'safe haven' for victims of crime. However, they instill fear as wrong-doers threaten to escape. The need for a sports complex has never been greater. Assisting the promotion of a healthy active community should be the biggest priority. A call to end this tyrannous reign of injustice begins now!

Note: This is a good essay. However, this could still be improved. For starters, do not leave your arguments baseless. Research on the internet pieces of evidence such as examples, research, articles, news, surveys, statistics, and expert testimonies. Remember that it is hard to convince people, but with the right evidence, they can easily be convinced. Lastly, your conclusion should tie all of the points being elaborated in the body section.
