

PART 2

-Past achievements

-Community

-How these relate to your future contributions and more importantly what you will give the school?

-Achievements are all commodities

-STILL MENTION ACHIEVEMENTS AND PAST EXPERIENCE

DO NOT BRAND YOURSELF AS A COMMODITY

-LEADERSHIP

-HEART AND KINDNESS

-Embracing the school spirit

-MORAL VALUES

In my violin, I consistently practice it as I know that I will improve. My determination and perseverance have earned me a High Distinction in my latest violin exam. I have participated in music classes, showing my violin. My mum and dad keep motivating me to do better, and practice more, and show me the rhythm and how to tune my violin. I love participating in different competitions and strive to become better than my violin teacher.

Soccer is a sport that I love and have a strong desire and passion for. It is my favourite sport. In soccer, you need to cooperate and pass the ball to score. I am good at these, and I can therefore score achieve incredible goals. When I started soccer, my dad taught me how to play from a young age. I desired to become better than my dad and someday even play for a professional soccer club! Now, I am striving for that distant dream more than ever and wish to become better at soccer than my dad.

Previously, I have achieved many great outstanding awards for my passion and consistency for academic and athletic reasons. I have won trophies and many more. My achievements include a wide variety, such as the highest score in on a test in my class, winning an academic student of the year, and much more.

My leadership skills are comforting and reliable. I can be their there when you need help, and I also have the ability to contribute to discussions and lead groups. I was a soccer captain a few times in matches, and due to my fantastic instructing instruction and respect skills, we always won the games.

I can embrace the school spirit by helping others achieve goals and doing what is right. I enjoy communicating with other students that are at my level of understanding for different subjects. For my dream school, I can contribute by giving other students ideas and explanations so I can cooperate with them well.

My moral values relate to leadership. Some of my moral values are honesty, responsibility, caring, forgiveness, respect and perseverance. I can become a great leader using these values. One time, I couldn't find an answer to a tricky question. So, I kept trying and eventually, I found the answer. Even when I have done sinister things, I consider what I have done wrong and tell the truth to others.

My heart and kindness can help other people gain their goals and dreams. I enjoy seeing others achieve their goals and obtain new accomplishments, and I can help many students with work. My heart and kindness can also aid people into trying new skills or having new opportunities.

Good try in making the work improved. Make sure you answer all the different parts of the questions. I know you can create better pieces by improving word choice, arranging sentences properly, and practising how you can express your ideas through some good choice of words. You can do journaling or read novels to help you on how you are going to accomplish good descriptions.
