

Part 1 Prompt 1

It would be helpful if you write the title of your essay here.

The city is the beating heart and hearth of our community. It is a place where we socialize, come together to share stories and laughter and have a great time. Nevertheless, it is still a place for colossal inequality, where communities struggle for resources, while others spend their money recklessly.

From this, a pivotal question emerges. What is more important for our city? A shopping mall, or a community centre?

The question is straightforward and clear. We must spend our time and money building and erecting a new community centre, which will help young people, building and inspiring many youthful minds, socializing with other humans, and provide more education and social activities for kids to enjoy and flourish their minds. The solid reason for a community centre is to help someone. Unlike a shopping mall, which traps us in endless hellholes of confusion, sucking people's attention to new clothes or food and corrupting people's minds with sales all around the country, a community centre is a place for education and entertainment.

Community centres teach us about the power of socializing. Even if you talk to someone for a bit, they will feel joy and happiness of being recognized. Then, they will spread more passion and love. An endless ripple of kindness and generosity will submerge the world. If we do not build community centres, then this kindness ripple will disappear, and the world will be plagued and infected by feelings of sorrow, bitterness, anger and disrespect.

The quote "A powerful society is one where everyone is valued" represents community centres. In these areas, all kinds of humans are welcome and individually valued. Therefore, community centres represent a powerful society.

Community centres aid people in need who are injured, educate the youth and provide company for the elderly. Where did you get this statistics from? Cite properly. About 80% of people who are disabled went to a community centre, and are living healthy and having a fun time. We should value the hospitality that these wonderful hostages provide us. We are lucky to have community centres. They can be fun and help many people. Although many may argue that community centres are boring, aren't shopping malls boring too? What is the difference?

More essential needs are provided in shopping malls, but I believe health and education come first and they are our priority. I insist that we must fabricate community centres to help our community. This is a call to action to manufacture a new community centre and we must answer the call.

Note:

This is a good essay. The structure, diction, and grammar are commendable. However, there are areas of concern that need to be rectified. To begin with, you have used quotations from a source work to support the arguments and ideas in your own essay. As a result, you must explain to your reader why you have included it and how it connects to and contributes to the development of your argument. Moreover, the number that you mentioned in your body is subject to confusion and plagiarism. To avoid this issue, cite the author's name or title of that study.
