

is as crowded as ____

The city center is as crowded that if somebody take a mammal step they will fall onto the rails. The people had to be pushed into the train as there was too many people. The humongous ^{broken grammar} skyscrapers tower into This is Tokyo the most populated city on earth. The malls ^{are} a crowded with people trying to get the latest technology or the best essential goods. The aromas of the scrumptious quality food explode out of the restaurant and into the nostrils of people. In Shibuya crossing it looks as if one thousand people are crossing at once. Everybody seem joyful. Everybody has a decent amount of money. There was no sign of poverty. ^{comma after Minato} In Minato the busy rumbling sounds of the cars that rolls of down any other sounds. ^{comma after Urayasa} Over in Urayasa the Disney land attracts lots of laughter and smiles. It shines. ^{delete the period an} Like a ember of fire standing attractively. It takes in a lot of tourist making it more seen and happy. Outside the buses are beeping the trains are tooting. This is what is expected of a lively city. The Skytree looking down seeing hundreds of small building s and many miniatur e ones far away. This is a city of industry, of nature , of beauty which shaped daylight. ^{comma not period} Night time is a completely different story.

comma after night

lights

what are you trying to say?

At night the city still haven't slept it is still bustling. Bright neon light show the cities it way many restaurants still have customers. ^{comma after nights} On special nights fireworks go up embedded the dark black sky with colourful paintings. Parades are held showing how active this city is. How empowering it is against the darkness.

comma after summer

you chances

what?

In summer the hot weather gives yo changes to swim or to go to the beach. Autumn creates are orange pictures with leaves dropping on the floor waiting for people to jump on. In winter the snow decorate the city white. The chilly temps turn blasts at people. ^{comma after spring} In spring it gives the city vibrancy as the first cherry blossoms bloom.

It's good that you applied descriptive language to allow your readers to visualize the place you are talking about but unfortunately, you weren't able to explore the themes of discovery, alienation, and danger. You missed to answer the following questions as well: how do the said themes affect your experience in the city? What have you learned about the city and its people? and How does you time in the city change you? Moreover, it lacks a clear plotline. It's almost like you were just simply informing. You should've approached it like you were story-telling! Please do better next time
Mark=35/50