

Which school are you referring to? Specify

I will strive with honor to contribute to this school as I am a great fit for the motto Fortiter et fideliter. I shall volunteer with charities Assist at events such as school plays, donating books to the library and lots more. All of the time, I am a mostly positive person. I try to help others and keep on going. Although I havent got a lot of leadership role this year I have gotten house captain and class captain. This will prove that I shall thrive to make this school better in any possible way I can.

Your text is very short. It lacks a lot of information. I don't think you justified yourself here. In order to effectively sell yourself to the interviewer, you have to brag your accomplishments respectfully. Sometimes, you even have to enumerate these achievements one by one to really show it to them that you have these set of skills and that you are capable. You have to be confident. As for contributions, it doesn't necessarily mean that you have to promise the school something. It actually means "how can the school benefit from your abilities?" and this is where you sell yourself! Tell them your good qualities, your strengths, and etc. Please apply yourself and don't be stingy with information next time
