Section 1:

#1: "I believe school will help me in my future career by teaching me two main things, values and skills."

a. Strengths:

- Clear thesis statement
- Concise introduction of main points

b. Weaknesses: Lack of specificity Your opening statement is broad and could benefit from more precise language. Instead of "two main things," you could specify the exact values and skills you expect to learn.

c. Exemplar: "I believe school will equip me for my future career by instilling essential values such as integrity and perseverance, while also honing crucial skills like critical thinking and effective communication."

#2: "The skills that I will learn will help me solve problems in life that may occur occasionally. For instance, if you lose something special, or you make a bad choice."

a. Strengths:

- Attempt to provide examples
- Connection between skills and real-life situations

b. Weaknesses: Vague examples Your examples lack depth and relevance to career-specific scenarios. The phrase "lose something special" is too general and doesn't clearly relate to professional problem-solving.

c. Exemplar: "The problem-solving skills I'll develop will be invaluable in navigating workplace challenges, such as resolving conflicts with colleagues or adapting to new technologies."

#3: "Good values that I learn in life will help me become a good person and show initiative to help people. People who speak up about what they think is right, can really help some other people who are treated badly."

a. Strengths:

- Emphasis on moral development
- Recognition of the importance of social responsibility

b. Weaknesses: Oversimplification Your discussion of values lacks depth and specificity. The phrase "good person" is vague, and you don't clearly link these values to career success.

c. Exemplar: "The ethical values I cultivate at school, such as integrity and empathy, will shape me into a principled professional who can advocate for fairness and equality in the workplace."

Actionable task: Rewrite your essay, focusing on providing specific examples of skills and values directly relevant to your future career aspirations. Ensure you identify at least two concrete skills and two specific values, explaining how each will contribute to your professional development.

Overall score: 42/50

Section 2: Revision Guidelines

#1 ~~I believe school will help me in my future career by teaching me two main things, values and skills.~~ [I believe school will help me in my future career by teaching me two main things: values and skills.] The skills that I will learn will help me solve problems in life that may occur occasionally. #2 For instance, if you lose something special, or you make a bad choice. These problem solving skills that you learn at school will teach you how to deal with these issues and to handle them properly. #3 Good values that I learn in life will help me become a good person and show initiative to help people. People who speak up about what they think is right, can really help some other people who are treated badly. If you have both of these, you will most likely live a great life because you are a good person and you know how to deal with issues.
