

Section 1:

#1: a. Strengths:

- Vivid imagery in describing the developers
- Effective use of sensory details to set the scene

b. Weaknesses: Overreliance on stereotypes Your description of the developers relies heavily on clichéd physical attributes, such as "potbellies hung on the edge of the suspenders" and "Thick triple chins obscured their necks". This portrayal lacks nuance and depth, potentially oversimplifying the characters.

c. Exemplar: "The developers stood by the fountain, their crisp suits and polished shoes contrasting sharply with the park's natural beauty. Their eyes gleamed with anticipation of profit, seemingly blind to the history and memories embedded in every blade of grass."

#2: a. Strengths:

- Shows initiative and teamwork among the characters
- Demonstrates the use of technology for activism

b. Weaknesses: Lack of conflict development Your story jumps from the initial problem to the solution without exploring the challenges or obstacles the characters might face. For instance, the line "Mia felt the corner of her lips turn up, already they could make a change" suggests an oversimplified resolution.

c. Exemplar: "Mia felt a glimmer of hope at her friends' enthusiasm, but she couldn't shake the nagging doubt. How could three teenagers stand up against powerful developers? She pushed the thought aside and focused on their next steps."

#3: a. Strengths:

- Shows the impact of grassroots movements
- Provides a satisfying resolution to the conflict

b. Weaknesses: Rushed ending Your conclusion feels abrupt and lacks detail. The line "Eventually, they gave in" doesn't provide enough information about how or why the developers changed their minds, leaving the reader wanting more explanation.

c. Exemplar: "As the crowd grew, so did the media attention. Local news channels arrived, broadcasting the protest live. Faced with mounting public pressure and negative publicity, the developers called for a meeting with community leaders. After hours of negotiation, they agreed to revise their plans, preserving most of the park while still addressing housing needs."

Actionable task: Rewrite the final paragraph, focusing on providing more detail about how the protest unfolds and why the developers ultimately change their minds. Ensure to include specific actions taken by Mia and her friends that contribute to their success.

Overall score: 41/50

Section 2: Revision Guidelines

Saving Future Memories

Mia froze as her eyes widened to [in] disbelief when she skimmed the new headline before the Bethesda Fountain - 'Constructing new apartments'. In the corner of her eye, she shaped out what seemed like dreadful developers. Their potbellies hung on the edge of the suspenders, clinging on for dear life. Thick triple chins obscured their necks, followed by dark circles underneath their eyes. Heartless smirks pierced through her body as their yellowed teeth hissed out words, poisoning the otherwise untrammelled [untrammelled]skies with their evil - "Profit ... Mortgage ... Unfathomable capital gain."
#1

The bells on Tom's Restaurant's door resounded as Mia and her trustworthy friends piled in, the smell of flat white hinting in the air. "Alright team," she announced as she purchased coffee~~ ""~~[, "]Project Save Central Park' gather around." "I'll handle the technological side," Alex remarked, already furiously typing on his laptop - which he had brought before, "I could create blogs and ads to prevent the construction!" "And I can create signs that we could hold up. My mum's a bit of an artist, I bet she would help!" exclaimed Dominic. Mia felt the corner of her lips turn up, already they could make a change. #2

They were interrupted by the outrageous developers, raging outside the shop, violently yelling about profits and gains and how these kids don't even know about economics. Mia and her friends held back their tears, they couldn't quit now.

A few days later, they gathered again at the restaurant, signs and ads ready to rebel. "Ready guys [everyone]?" Mia exclaimed. "Yes!" Alex and Dominic replied in unison.

As they strolled down to the Bethesda Fountain, they planted the signs next to the construction sign. Mia was surprised when they got supporters from the local people. Eventually, she had tons of people. Taken aback, they rampaged through the waddling developers. Eventually, they gave in. Mia felt yet another smile form on her face. They had done it. #3