

#1: "Imagine a world without disability , evryone can be fee and do whatever they want. Well, that's not exactly my idea but myidea is that all the disabled people don't need anyone helping them, they can buy a robot!"

a. Strengths:

- You start with an attention-grabbing opening that encourages readers to imagine a different world.
- You introduce your main idea clearly, proposing a solution for disabled individuals.

b. Weaknesses: Main issue: Lack of clarity and coherence Your opening sentence is confusing and doesn't connect well with your main idea. The phrase "evryone can be fee" is unclear, and the sudden shift to introducing robots feels abrupt. For instance, "Well, that's not exactly my idea" contradicts your opening statement without explanation.

c. Exemplar: "Imagine a world where disability doesn't limit independence. My idea is to introduce advanced robots that can assist disabled individuals, eliminating their need for human helpers."

#2: "The price ($) can range from $600-$1000 (depends how high tech you want it),because even if you are not disabled you can still you use it as it follows everyone's orders."

a. Strengths:

- You provide specific price information, which adds credibility to your proposal.
- You expand the potential market by suggesting non-disabled individuals can also benefit from the robot.

b. Weaknesses: Main issue: Awkward phrasing and lack of detail Your sentence structure is confusing, particularly "you can still you use it". Additionally, you don't explain what "high tech" features justify the price range. The phrase "follows everyone's orders" is vague and doesn't clearly convey the robot's capabilities.

c. Exemplar: "The robots are available in various models, ranging from £450 to £750, depending on the technological features. They're designed to assist both disabled and non-disabled individuals by following voice commands for a wide range of tasks."

#3: "I know you or your child are feeling lonely, well this robot will be like a best friend to you! So, come to our shop and buy now!"

a. Strengths:

- You appeal to emotions by addressing potential loneliness, which could resonate with readers.
- You end with a clear call to action, encouraging readers to make a purchase.

b. Weaknesses: Main issue: Oversimplification and lack of professionalism Your claim that the robot will be "like a best friend" oversimplifies complex emotional needs and may come across as insensitive. The abrupt transition to "So, come to our shop and buy now!" feels rushed and lacks the persuasive detail needed for such a significant purchase.

c. Exemplar: "Our robots can provide companionship and support, potentially alleviating feelings of loneliness for both adults and children. Visit our shop to learn more about how these innovative assistants can enhance your daily life."

Actionable task: Rewrite your piece, focusing on clearly explaining the robot's specific features and benefits. Ensure you provide concrete examples of how the robot can assist disabled individuals in their daily lives.
