

Section 1:

#1 First Paragraph Strengths:

- Powerful emotional appeal through vivid imagery of struggling families
- Effective use of progressive intensity in describing financial hardship

Weaknesses: Main Issue: Underdeveloped argument structure → Your opening relies heavily on emotional appeals without establishing the concrete problem. When you write "financial decay that crush them," you create impact but don't specify the systemic issues that UBI addresses. The conclusion of this paragraph would be stronger if it built a clearer bridge between the emotional scenario and the proposed solution.

Exemplar: "Today, countless families face crushing debt and financial instability, highlighting the urgent need for systematic change through Universal Basic Income implementation."

#2 Second Paragraph Strengths:

- Clear definition of UBI concept
- Thoughtful exploration of the trust relationship between citizens and government

Weaknesses: Main Issue: Imprecise explanation mechanics → Your description of UBI as "like rations" oversimplifies the concept. When you state "they are paid equal," you miss the opportunity to delve into the specific mechanics of how UBI functions within an economic system.

Exemplar: "UBI provides citizens with regular, unconditional payments, ensuring a baseline standard of living while maintaining the incentive for economic participation."

#3 Fifth Paragraph Strengths:

- Strong conviction in conclusion
- Clear connection to broader societal implications

Weaknesses: Main Issue: Limited synthesis of evidence → Your conclusion stating UBI "would rid the world of the recurring disease named poverty" makes a bold claim without synthesizing the evidence presented earlier. The final paragraph would benefit from connecting back to your specific examples from South Korea and Finland.

Exemplar: "As demonstrated by initial trials in multiple nations, Universal Basic Income offers a promising path toward reducing poverty and creating more equitable societies, making it a compelling model for our collective future."

Actionable Task: Rewrite your second paragraph focusing specifically on the mechanics of UBI implementation, including payment frequencies, distribution methods, and how it interacts with existing welfare systems.

Overall Score: 42/50

Section 2:

#1 Envision an inevitable future where desperate parents cling onto their debts and loans. The torture from the relentless agony still pains thousands of homeless families today. They are impoverished, crestfallen by the inflicting waves of financial decay that crush them, bankrupt them and demoralise them. In these troubled days, many families are constantly conflicted with mathematical struggles with numbers running loose in their mind. ~~Needless to say, financial struggles are now a constant to many families.~~ [Financial struggles have become an inescapable reality for countless families.] Therefore, it should be mandatory to stimulate UBI in many nations where they desperately need this implementation.

#2 UBI, or Universal Basic Income, is a strategy for governments that could change their countries forever. Devised by Karl Widerquist, UBI is a sociopolitical financial transfer proposal that relies on sheer collaboration between citizens and the government. ~~By that, it means that citizens have to trust the government and vice versa.~~ [This system requires mutual trust between citizens and their government.] Every single resident is trusted with an amount of money each day, like rations, and they are paid equal. ~~This would create a harmonious community with citizens working and enjoying their tranquil lifestyle.~~ [This approach aims to foster a harmonious community where citizens can both work productively and maintain a balanced lifestyle.] UBI not only affects how the nations run, but it also deeply impacts the lives of countless citizens.

Several countries have implemented this proposal such as South Korea starting from 2016 have been giving quarterly "allowance" to citizens of the province Gyeonggi aged 24 years or older. However, it can only be used in local businesses. Other examples show that in Finland, there was a trial programme that gave 2,000 unemployed adults a monthly grant. It lasted from 2016 to 2018 and provided numerous citizens with the help they needed. Other countries such as Iran have fully developed Universal Basic Income and have benefited from it as well. As well as these countries, many other countries such as France and China have also been concerned about whether to implement this programme or not.

Universal Basic Income is crucial for giving freedom to the citizens, as they do not have to worry about work time or earning a sufficient amount of money to feed their families. Increased recreational time for residents means more time to pursue their lifelong dreams and hobbies.

#3 Overall, UBI is an implementation that could change the world forever. It would rid the world of the recurring disease named poverty and let citizens live their lives at best. Universal Basic Income helps people to live equally. ~~We should consider UBI as the future way of life.~~ [We must embrace UBI as an essential pathway to our collective future.]
