

Section 1:

#1 "Welcome to Ulaanbaatar known also as the capital of Mongolia where we are going to be celebrating a unique and special parade from Brazil called Rio Carnival..."

Strengths:

- Engaging opening that draws listeners in
- Clear introduction of the main event

Weakness: Radio Script Formatting → Your opening lacks the punchy, conversational tone needed for radio. The sentence structure is too complex for listeners to follow easily in an audio format.

Exemplar: "Good evening, listeners! I'm broadcasting live from the vibrant streets of Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia's capital, where something extraordinary is about to unfold – the Rio Carnival!"

#2 "The parades happening in Mongolia are extremely festive which includes people wearing clothes with red, blue, purple, green and black in them."

Strengths:

- Creates vivid imagery for listeners
- Captures the festive atmosphere

Weakness: Audio Description Flow → Your description lacks the dynamic, present-tense narration that helps radio listeners feel immersed in the scene. The colours are listed rather than woven into an engaging narrative.

Exemplar: "I'm surrounded by a sea of dancers, their costumes shimmering with vibrant reds and deep purples. The streets are alive with swirling greens and blues – it's a spectacular sight, dear listeners!"

#3 "This celebration is a significant event with two countries far apart from each other merging together into an important celebration."

Strengths:

- Emphasises cultural significance
- Highlights the international nature of the event

Weakness: Conclusion Impact → Your conclusion lacks the emotional resonance and sign-off elements typical of radio broadcasting. The phrasing is too formal for an audio medium.

Exemplar: "What we're witnessing here today, dear listeners, is truly remarkable – Mongolia and Brazil, though worlds apart, coming together in an unforgettable celebration of unity. Back to you in the studio!"

Actionable Task: Rewrite your piece as a proper radio script by adding clear broadcaster voice markers (e.g., "Dear listeners), using present tense for immediate impact, and including more dynamic, conversational transitions between segments.

Score: 39/50

Section 2:

~~Welcome to Ulaanbaatar known also as the capital of Mongolia~~ [Good evening, listeners! I'm coming to you live from Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia's capital,] where ~~we are going to be celebrating~~ [I'm witnessing the preparations for] a unique and special parade from Brazil called Rio Carnival, starting from 28th February to 8th March. ~~This parade is to celebrate~~ [Behind me, crowds are gathering to celebrate] the beginning of the season of Lent, though it has evolved to celebrate the history, culture, and traditions of the people of Brazil. ~~In this context we are describing and explaining what is going to happen at~~ [Let me take you through what you can expect at] this year's Rio Carnival. #1

~~In Mongolia, Ulaanbaatar the streets are filled~~ [The streets around me are pulsing] with the vibrant spirit of Brazil, and ~~everyone is~~ [I can see the crowd growing] ecstatic and energetic about this specific festival. This year's celebration is expected to draw record-breaking crowds, making it Mongolia's most attended festival.

~~You will see young people dancing~~ [Right now, I'm watching young performers practise] Brazil's most famous dance, the Samba, ~~performed at~~ [here in] Ulaanbaatar with other astonishing views in Mongolia. ~~People will be dancing~~ [Dancers are rehearsing] Samba with bright and festive colours and will cover nearly half of the entire carnival. The views ~~in Mongolia are~~ [behind me are absolutely] stunning with a vast variety of colours lit up on the tall skyscrapers in the crimson sunset.

~~The parades happening in Mongolia are extremely festive which includes~~ [I can see performers getting ready in their costumes,] ~~people wearing~~ [dressed in] clothes with red, blue, purple, green and black in them. #2 There are going to be many parades, street parties, and grand events hosted at the Rio carnival. Over forty-six million people are attending this year and it will be one of the most unforgettable moments you will have when visiting here.

~~This celebration is a significant event with two countries far apart from each other merging together into an important celebration. This is how we can celebrate unity in diversity in harmony~~
[This is truly a historic moment, dear listeners. As I stand here watching Mongolia and Brazil unite through dance and celebration, I'm reminded of how music and festivity can bridge any distance. Back to you in the studio!] #3

~~Tickets Adult: $5 Child: $3~~ [And for those of you wanting to join us here, tickets are priced at just $5 for adults and $3 for children], with a 25% family discount available. ~~Only starts at~~ [The festivities run from] 5pm to 9pm everyday.
