

Section 1:

#1 (First paragraph) Strengths:

- Strong thesis statement establishing the universal appeal of white A4 paper
- Effective connection between formal and informal uses

Weaknesses: Structural Coherence → Your opening paragraph contains run-on sentences that diminish its impact. The phrase "the classic look that clearly states its purpose, while at the same time versatile from formal report to child's simple scribble" needs clearer organisation.

Exemplar: "White A4 paper serves as the universal choice across business, education, and personal use, offering a classic look that clearly states its purpose whilst maintaining versatility for both formal reports and children's drawings."

#2 (Second paragraph) Strengths:

- Detailed explanation of practical benefits
- Clear focus on readability aspects

Weaknesses: Redundancy → Your paragraph repeats similar ideas about clarity multiple times. The phrase "I know and believe" followed later by "I am certain" creates unnecessary repetition that weakens your argument.

Exemplar: "White A4 paper provides unrivalled clarity and readability. Its bright, neutral background allows printed text and images to stand out effectively, enabling readers to review documents for extended periods without experiencing visual fatigue."

#3 (Final paragraph) Strengths:

- Attempts to summarise main points
- Clear structure with three supporting points

Weaknesses: Conclusion Development → Your conclusion merely lists previous points without synthesis. The phrase "It is now obvious" followed by a simple list doesn't provide a satisfying closure to your argument.

Exemplar: "The combination of coherence, cost-effectiveness, and professional presentation makes white A4 paper the superior choice for all document needs, from academic submissions to business communications."

Actionable Task: Rewrite your conclusion paragraph focusing on synthesising your arguments rather than listing them, and ensure to draw connections between your three main points to create a more compelling closing statement.

Score: 41/50

Section 2:

Why White A4 Paper is the Perfect Colour for All My Paper Needs

~~#1 For any possible paper need to be done at work, school, or home, I think that white A4 is exactly what one needs: the classic look that clearly states its purpose, while at the same time versatile from formal report to child's simple scribble. White A4 paper is the paper of choice anywhere and everywhere for business, students, and individuals alike—globalized language for simplicity and efficacy, and the value is great regarding clarity, cost-efficiency, and professionalism.~~ [For all paper needs at work, school, or home, white A4 paper provides exactly what one needs: a classic look that clearly states its purpose whilst maintaining versatility from formal reports to children's drawings. White A4 paper serves as the universal choice for businesses, students, and individuals alike—a globalised standard for simplicity and efficacy that offers exceptional value in terms of clarity, cost-efficiency, and professionalism.]

~~#2 Firstly, I know and believe that white A4 offers unrivalled clearness and ease of reading. Bright neutral backgrounds allow printed text and images to stand out without tiring the eyes, thus making it easier for any reader to go through documents for extended periods without any discomfort.~~ [Firstly, white A4 offers unrivalled clarity and ease of reading. Its bright, neutral background allows printed text and images to stand out without causing eye strain, enabling readers to review documents for extended periods without discomfort.] With a detailed report, a research paper, or even a high-stakes presentation, white paper ensures that the message I want to send is clear and easily absorbed. I am certain that any coloured or tinted paper would compromise the contrast between text and background and make reading a much harder and tiring task for my audience.

In addition, I believe that white A4 paper justifies its price. Being the most widely used colour of paper, its production in bulk results in higher economies of scale, thus its price mostly goes down. It becomes super affordable whether I buy paper for school projects, or just printing stuff personally. This quality of white A4 paper affordability doesn't come with any sacrifice in quality reliability and value—all while keeping my printing costs low.

Finally, I am sure white A4 paper equals professionalism. An entirely white paper's submission sends a message of seriousness and immediacy. I would be certain that people would like to see their important documents in a neat and white piece of paper, instead of having a colourful and fancy piece of paper.

~~#3 It is now obvious that white A4 piece of papers are the best colour for paper, for three main reasons the coherence, the price is a lot cheaper than other coloured pieces of paper and that it's more professional.~~ [White A4 paper stands as the superior choice due to its coherent presentation, cost-effectiveness compared to coloured alternatives, and its inherent professional appeal.]