

Section 1:

#1 (First paragraph): Strengths:

- Strong scene-setting with vivid sensory details and atmospheric elements
- Effective use of audio cues (intro music) to establish the radio format

Weakness: Inconsistent Tense Usage → Your writing shifts between present and present continuous tenses, creating confusion. For instance, "as we are approaching" followed by "let's embrace" disrupts the flow. The mixing of tenses weakens the immediacy of the radio broadcast format.

Exemplar: "Good evening listeners! As we approach the festive season, we invite you to embrace the celebrations occurring across the globe."

#2 (Second paragraph): Strengths:

- Rich visual imagery that transports listeners to the scene
- Effective layering of multiple sensory elements

Weakness: Repetitive Sentence Structure → Your sentences follow a similar pattern, particularly with the use of "each" at the beginning of clauses: "each covered," "each costume," "each mouth watering." This creates a monotonous rhythm that doesn't match the dynamic nature of the carnival.

Exemplar: "The dazzling costumes below shimmer with vibrant feathers and glitter, crowned by masks adorned with graphic colours and magnificent plumes."

#3 (Fourth paragraph): Strengths:

- Effective transition from action to culinary elements
- Good use of sensory details to describe food

Weakness: Underdeveloped Scene Transition → Your shift from the dance scene to the feast feels abrupt. The phrase "Then the preparation of the feast is complete" doesn't smoothly connect with the previous excitement of the carnival atmosphere.

Exemplar: "As the rhythmic celebrations reach their peak, tantalising aromas begin to drift through the air, signalling the completion of the feast preparations."

Actionable Task: Rewrite the fourth paragraph focusing on creating smoother transitions between the dance celebration and the feast scene. Consider how one scene naturally flows into the other through shared sensory experiences.

Overall Score: 41/50

Intro Music

This evening we welcome you to a popular Brazilian Carnival with the picturesque background landscape of a tranquil noon in Malaysia.

Faint samba music

Samba music fills the lively air as people dance across the street with endless enthusiasm and energy. On platters lay rows of delicacies, each mouth watering and scrumptious.

- Strong samba music Loud Brazilian drums

Now picture with an array of endless hills, boundless landscape, clear azure sky and a sun kissed country. The wind comforts you and encourages you to continue dancing. This is Malaysia. A throng of people watch the street performance, each of them dressed with the same vivid clothing. As you hear the samba music against the bird chirps and the loud drums, you can't help but feel the exuberance in the air. Drummers set a rhythm as the crowd start catching the contagious laughter, excitement and dance moves.

Faint samba music Faint clanking of dishes
