

Section 1:

#1 First paragraph: Strengths:

- You've clearly stated your main argument about white being the best colour
- You've introduced multiple supporting points that you'll develop

Weaknesses: Repetitive opening → Your opening sentence repeats itself with "white is the best colour for A4 paper." You've also listed your points without proper development. In "unlike any other colour that has a colour that doesn't fit it," your meaning is unclear and needs more specific examples.

Exemplar: Good morning fellow students. Today I will explain why white A4 paper is superior to other colours. White paper's versatility, clarity, and compatibility with other colours make it the ideal choice for everyday use.

#2 Second paragraph: Strengths:

- You've attempted to use a comparison to support your point
- You've included a specific example with purple

Weaknesses: Underdeveloped argument → Your comparison needs more details. When you say "Even white's contrast doesn't look bad on it," you haven't explained what white's contrast is. Your example about yellow and purple needs more explanation about why it matters for paper.

Exemplar: White paper enhances every colour placed upon it. For instance, both light and dark colours stand out clearly on white paper, while coloured paper can clash with certain inks and make text difficult to read.

#3 Final paragraph: Strengths:

- You've included a practical example about school
- You've connected your point to everyday use

Weaknesses: Conclusion lacks impact → Your conclusion simply repeats your introduction word for word rather than strengthening your argument. You haven't added any new insights or left readers with a memorable final thought.

Exemplar: Therefore, white A4 paper remains the most practical choice for schools, offices, and creative projects. Its versatility and clarity make it irreplaceable in our daily lives.

■ Your writing would benefit from more specific examples and deeper explanations. Try to expand each point by explaining why it matters to the reader. For instance, when you mention that white paper can be coloured or printed on, explain how this benefits students in their schoolwork. Add examples from your own experience to make your arguments more convincing.

Actionable Task: Rewrite your second paragraph focusing on how white paper specifically benefits student activities, including at least three detailed examples from your school experience.

Score: 40/50

Section 2:

Good morning fellow students. Today I will be explaining why white is the best colour for A4 paper– ~~It is undoubtedly that white~~ [White is undoubtedly] the best colour for A4 paper. White, a simple colour that can easily match and go with any colour, ~~unlike any other colour that has a colour that doesn't fit it~~ [while other colours may clash with certain shades]. Not only is white simple, but it is a colour that can be used for many purposes, and can easily be changed into another colour, and it is much clearer for writing, art and other things including ink on paper. #1

Every colour has a contrast, and a colour that doesn't fit well with it, ~~while white, looks good with any colour~~ [while white looks good with any colour] and doesn't make any colour look bad. For example, yellow with dark purple doesn't look as good as white with purple. Even white's contrast doesn't look bad on it. That is how good it is. #2

White can be used for anything, including turning into other colours. You can easily change it into other colours by colouring it in or printing other colours on it. Because you can do that it can be used in multiple different ways, and it's simple!

White is a clear colour, making it easy to read other colours that are written on them. White is simple and is not confusing. It is easy to make out where other colours are. For example, at school you write on white paper with black pen and that makes it easier to read the writing

~~It is clear, and undoubtedly that white~~ [Clearly, white is undoubtedly] the best colour for A4 paper because white is a simple colour that can easily match and go with any colour, unlike any other colour that has a colour that doesn't fit it. Not only is white simple, but it is a colour that can be used for many purposes, and can easily be changed into another colour, and it is much clearer for writing, art and other things including ink on paper. #3
