

Section 1:

#1 "I was there, standing in front of the luxurious building of the Raffles hotel. The glimmering surface of the hotel reflected like a piece of glass. Beautiful, shimmering rocks lay beside the grand entrance."

Strengths:

- Vivid sensory details that paint a clear picture of the hotel's exterior
- Effective use of descriptive language with words like "glimmering" and "shimmering"

Weakness: Limited depth in scene setting → Your description focuses mainly on surface-level observations. The phrase "beautiful, shimmering rocks" lacks specific details about their appearance or how they contribute to the hotel's atmosphere. You could enhance the scene by including more sensory details beyond just visual elements.

Exemplar: Standing before the majestic Raffles hotel, I was captivated by its gleaming facade that sparkled in the morning sun like polished crystal, while carefully arranged granite stones lined the path to its imposing entrance.

#2 "The next morning, I set foot in the library. Around me were towers and towers of books stacked like dominos into the sky. The library was huge."

Strengths:

- Creative use of simile comparing book stacks to dominos
- Creates a sense of scale and grandeur

Weakness: Repetitive and underdeveloped description → Your writing repeats the idea of size without exploring the library's character. The phrase "The library was huge" is too simple and adds little value after already describing the towers of books. The passage needs more specific details about the library's atmosphere.

Exemplar: As I entered the library the next morning, I was surrounded by towering shelves of leather-bound books that stretched towards the ornate ceiling like carefully arranged dominos, creating an atmosphere of timeless elegance.

#3 "As I jumped into the water, I felt splashes of comfortness cover me. After a lot of swimming, it was time to go."

Strengths:

- Attempts to convey personal experience
- Shows sequence of events

Weakness: Imprecise language and abrupt ending → Your writing uses unclear expressions like "splashes of comfortness" and rushes through the experience. The phrase "After a lot of swimming" is vague and misses the opportunity to describe the actual experience.

Exemplar: As I glided into the crystal-clear water, waves of warmth enveloped me, and I spent hours swimming peaceful laps under the azure sky before reluctantly heading back to pack my bags.

■ Your feature article would benefit from more detailed observations and personal reflections about your experience. Rather than simply stating what you did, share your thoughts and feelings throughout your stay. You could expand each section by including more specific details about the service, the atmosphere, and how the experience made you feel. Consider adding dialogue with hotel staff or other guests to bring your story to life.

I would like you to rewrite the library paragraph, focusing on including specific details about the books you discovered and your emotional response to being in such a historic space.

Score: 38/50

Section 2:

#1 I was there, standing in front of the luxurious building of the Raffles hotel. The glimmering surface of the hotel reflected like a piece of glass. Beautiful, shimmering rocks lay beside the grand entrance.

#2 ~~The next morning, I set foot in the library. Around me were towers and towers of books stacked like dominos into the sky. The library was huge.~~ [The next morning, I ventured into the library, where countless shelves of books stretched upward like dominos reaching for the sky.] You could find whatever you could imagine in there, from comics to journals.

Later, I went to the bar to test out their drinks. I started off with a tiny sip. It was fantastic. ~~In a blink of an eye, I already juggled the whole bottle.~~ [Before I knew it, I had finished the entire bottle.] I could not stop myself from ordering more.

#3 ~~As I jumped into the water, I felt splashes of comfortness cover me.~~ [As I dove into the water, I felt waves of comfort envelope me.] After a lot of swimming, it was time to go. I gave a wave goodbye to the building ~~as it set off to another journey.~~ [as I set off on another journey.] That experience was once in a lifetime.
