

The Brazilian Carnival

Imagine sitting under bright lights as bright as the sun. If you want that to happen you should join the Brazilian Carnival. It has all sorts of games like roller coasters, food vendors, ferris wheel, thrill acts, animal act and alot more. What do you think you would feel like if you went? What place would you go to first if you went? Boom! Boom! During the fireworks, there even was a firework that looked like a waterfall that was made out of golden fireworks. There were about a million people standing just to celebrate this amazing festival, the Brazilian Carnival also broke the world record of most people attending a carnival! I also wonder why there were lots of people wearing masks and there were also lots of people joining a dance competition.

People really wanted to see me dance for some reason. One person gave me a mask to wear. It felt pretty weird and cool at the same time. Then lots of people were staring at me like I was god. Some people were laughing, I was so embarrassed I ran away. However, my friend stopped me and said there was a circus behind me and the clown messed up his line and then started roaring at the lion. Then the lion started roaring back, the lion then softly started whispering to the clown. He was going crazy breaking and smashing everything in his path like an overgrown elephant.

People started throwing food at the clown and the lion. The clown then was fired from his manager. The lion was then coached by my friend. The friend had a job now! Everyone was congratulating my friend. Then the carnival resumed from the roaring and shouting, and went back to laughter and talking.
