

Section 1:

#1 In the huge heart of the town's renowned hospital, Emma ambles slowly through the children's sleeping ward as the sun starts to set. Her steps are light, yet every single one carries an unwavering amount of dedication. The silhouette of the pediatric nurse is a sight seen every day and every night, yet no matter how many times you see her, Emma is as warm as hot chocolate on a snowy winter evening. Through the deafening silence of the tranquil hospital, Emma moulds each child's future with indelible compassion.

Strengths: Your vivid imagery creates a powerful atmosphere. Your metaphor comparing Emma to "hot chocolate on a snowy winter evening" effectively conveys warmth and comfort.

Weakness: Contradictory descriptions → You describe the hospital as having both "deafening silence" and being "tranquil." These descriptions clash with each other and create confusion about the setting's true atmosphere. Also, referring to Emma as both a "pediatric nurse" and later a "pediatrician" (in paragraph 3) creates uncertainty about her actual role.

Emma moves quietly through the children's sleeping ward in the heart of the town's renowned hospital as dusk approaches. Her gentle footsteps reflect her unwavering dedication. Though a familiar presence day and night, Emma radiates warmth like hot chocolate on a winter evening. In the peaceful quiet of the hospital, she tends to each child with lasting compassion.

#2 With every body she passes, Emma thinks about all the missed milestones, all the missed family celebrations, and all her families and friends, whom her heart aches to see. Why did she choose this profession? But with the gentle cry of a baby, Emma's question is answered. It is in this oasis which Emma remembers that this is where she wants to be, this is what her mind and her heart want to do. She smiles ever so gently to herself, knowing that all the children's lives she grasped onto were the reasons why those lives were not lost, and her heart swells with nurturing love for all children placed in her hands.

Strengths: Your exploration of Emma's inner conflict effectively shows her humanity. The resolution of her doubt through hearing a baby's cry is a touching moment of reaffirmation.

Weakness: Repetitive phrasing → You repeat "this is" multiple times in the sentence "It is in this oasis which Emma remembers that this is where she wants to be, this is what her mind and her heart want to do." This makes your writing sound choppy and less polished. Also, saying "all the children's lives she grasped onto were the reasons why those lives were not lost" is confusing and circular.

For each child she passes, Emma reflects on her own missed family celebrations and the friends her heart longs to see. Why did she choose this demanding profession? The gentle cry of a baby answers her question. In this healing space, Emma rediscovers her purpose and calling. She smiles softly to herself, knowing the children whose lives she's helped save are the reason she continues, her heart full of nurturing love for every child in her care.

#3 As dawn breaks, the bustling outside starts all over again. The piercing shrieks, the booming moans of pain and the crying of babies. But through all the mess, Emma knows that this is the reason why she is a pediatrician. Although it is possible that no one in the world cares about her profession, she knows that deep inside, she will always care about children.

Strengths: Your contrast between night and day atmospheres effectively shows the changing hospital environment. Your conclusion powerfully reinforces Emma's dedication to children regardless of external recognition.

Weakness: Sentence fragment → "The piercing shrieks, the booming moans of pain and the crying of babies" is not a complete sentence. It lacks a verb and stands alone incorrectly. Also, the statement "it is possible that no one in the world cares about her profession" seems extreme and disconnected from the rest of the narrative.

As dawn breaks, the bustling activity begins anew. Piercing shrieks, booming moans of pain, and crying babies fill the air. Yet amidst this chaos, Emma finds certainty in her calling as a paediatrician. Even when her profession seems undervalued by others, she remains steadfast in her commitment to caring for children.

Your narrative shows good potential with its strong emotional elements and character development. The way you portray Emma's dedication to children creates a compelling portrait of a healthcare professional. However, your writing would benefit from more consistent descriptions and clearer connections between ideas. The setting shifts between peaceful and chaotic without clear transitions, making it difficult to fully imagine the hospital environment.

Also consider developing Emma's character more fully by showing specific interactions with children rather than general statements about her care. Include small details about particular patients or moments that demonstrate her compassion in action. This would make your narrative more engaging and believable.

Additionally, clarify whether Emma is a nurse or a paediatrician, as this confusion distracts from your powerful emotional message. Improving the flow between sentences will help your readers follow Emma's journey more easily. Try reading your work aloud to catch awkward phrasings and repeated words. ■

Overall Score: 39/50

Section 2:

In the huge heart of the town's renowned hospital, Emma ambles slowly through the children's sleeping ward as the sun starts to set. Her steps are light, yet every single one carries an unwavering amount of dedication. The silhouette of the ~~pediatric~~ [paediatric] nurse is a sight seen every day and every night, yet no matter how many times you see her, Emma is as warm as hot chocolate on a snowy winter evening. ~~Through the deafening silence of the tranquil hospital, Emma moulds each child's future with indelible compassion.~~ [In the tranquil hospital, Emma moulds each child's future with indelible compassion.] #1

~~With every body she passes,~~ [For each patient she passes,] Emma thinks about all the missed milestones, all the missed family celebrations, and all her families and friends, whom her heart aches to see. Why did she choose this profession? But with the gentle cry of a baby, Emma's question is answered. ~~It is in this oasis which Emma remembers that this is where she wants to be, this is what her mind and her heart want to do.~~ [In this oasis, Emma remembers why she wants to be here, what her mind and heart are called to do.] She smiles ever so gently to herself, knowing that ~~all the children's lives she grasped onto were the reasons why those lives were not lost,~~ [the children whose lives she's helped save give purpose to her work,] and her heart swells with nurturing love for all children placed in her hands. #2

As dawn breaks, the bustling outside starts all over again. ~~The piercing shrieks, the booming moans of pain and the crying of babies.~~ [Piercing shrieks, booming moans of pain and crying babies fill the air.] But through all the mess, Emma knows that this is the reason why she is a ~~pediatrician~~ [paediatrician]. ~~Although it is possible that no one in the world cares about her profession,~~ [Even when others may not fully value her profession,] she knows that deep inside, she will always care about children. #3