

Section 1:

#1 (First paragraph): Strengths:

- Strong emotional appeal through vivid imagery of a child's isolation
- Effective use of descriptive language to create empathy

Weaknesses: Incomplete development of ideas → Your opening paragraph relies heavily on emotional appeal without establishing clear context about homeschooling. The phrase "trapped behind a menacing screen" creates a one-sided view without balanced discussion.

Exemplar: "While online homeschooling can present challenges like limited face-to-face interaction, it's important to examine both its benefits and drawbacks for children's education."

#2 (Second paragraph): Strengths:

- Clear presentation of traditional schooling benefits
- Good use of specific examples like science labs and libraries

Weaknesses: Limited supporting details → Your points about school resources lack depth. The phrase "excellent collaboration" needs specific examples of how students collaborate and benefit from it.

Exemplar: "In traditional schools, students develop teamwork skills through group projects, class discussions, and peer feedback, which helps them learn from different viewpoints."

#3 (Final paragraph): Strengths:

- Strong concluding statement
- Links back to main argument effectively

Weaknesses: Underdeveloped conclusion → Your conclusion repeats earlier points without adding new insights. The phrase "impossible to replicate" makes broad claims without showing why.

Exemplar: "While traditional schooling offers unique benefits through its structured environment and social interactions, a balanced discussion should consider how different learning settings might suit different students' needs."

■ Your persuasive piece shows potential but needs more depth to strengthen its argument. You can improve the second paragraph by giving examples of how students work together in class activities. Also, try adding real situations where school resources help students learn better. Your opening would be stronger if you showed both sides of homeschooling before explaining why traditional schools might be better. Additionally, your ending could include suggestions for making the most of school opportunities. Your writing would be more convincing if you showed how different students benefit from classroom learning in different ways. Try adding more details about daily school life to help readers picture your points better. Your piece would be stronger if you linked each benefit to how it helps students grow and learn.

Section 2:

#1 Imagine a small vulnerable child, trapped behind a menacing screen that prevents them from feeling the warmth of a teacher's encouragement or the sense of belonging, from the laughter of their friends. Their world gets smaller and smaller with each passing day, and homeschooling starts to feel like ~~an isolated prison in which you can't escape from~~ [an isolating environment from which they cannot escape].

#2 In contrast, traditional schooling offers access to resources that homeschooling simply cannot provide. In the classroom, students can interact with teachers who ~~specialize~~ [specialise] in various subjects, ensuring they receive expert guidance and immediate feedback. Schools also offer ~~a wide access to~~ [wide access to] extra activities which you can do at school. These include science labs, libraries, and sports fields, which are essential for hands-on learning and extracurricular development. Furthermore, the classroom environment fosters excellent collaboration, where students can learn from each other, engage in group discussions, and build social skills that are critical for personal growth.

#3 In conclusion, traditional schooling is far more than just an academic experience—it is a vital framework for a child's overall growth. The structure, resources, and social opportunities it provides are essential for building the skills and connections that are ~~impossible~~ [challenging] to replicate in an isolated, home-based setting. Without the rich environment of a classroom, children are deprived of the support and experiences they need to thrive.
