

Section 1:

#1 "Love is a soft warm cozy bed of everlasting happiness with the sensation like a pool in a hot humid day A mother is like an abstract home of immense joy and warmth. Love is not a takeaway heatpack of artificial warmth. A mother is not a concrete home that you can buy with money."

Strengths: Your use of contrasting metaphors effectively distinguishes what love and motherhood are versus what they are not. Your comparison of love to a "soft warm cozy bed" creates a vivid sensory image.

Weakness: Unclear metaphor connection → Your comparison between love and "a pool in a hot humid day" feels disconnected from the bed metaphor. The phrases "everlasting happiness" and "immense joy" are too vague and don't show specific feelings or experiences. In your first sentence, "Love is a soft warm cozy bed of everlasting happiness with the sensation like a pool in a hot humid day," you're mixing two different metaphors without explaining how they relate.

Exemplar: Love is a soft warm cozy bed that wraps around you with comfort, similar to how cool water refreshes you on a sweltering summer day.

#2 "The ocean is a calm pool of liquid with waves of elemental coolness. The sun is a ball of relaxing heat which can brighten people's days. The ocean is not a vast creepy pool of drowning. The sun is not a large circle of death shooters."

Strengths: Your contrasting descriptions show both positive and negative perspectives of natural elements. The sun "brightening people's days" works on both literal and figurative levels.

Weakness: Contradictory descriptions → You describe the ocean as "calm" but then mention "waves," which suggests movement rather than calmness. The phrase "death shooters" when describing the sun is unclear and doesn't convey a specific image. In "The ocean is a calm pool of liquid with waves," you're saying the ocean is calm but also has waves, which doesn't make sense together.

Exemplar: The ocean is a gentle giant, its cooling waves inviting us to play while respecting its power.

#3 "A shopping centre is a mall of fun and food which power you. A home is a building of sweet joy. An apartment is a building made of thousands of hearts of happiness. A school is a place where many hearts belong."

Strengths: Your metaphors attempt to give emotional qualities to physical places. You've created a consistent theme of positive emotions across different settings.

Weakness: Vague descriptions → The phrases "fun and food which power you" and "sweet joy" don't give specific details about what makes these places special. The image of an apartment having "thousands of hearts of happiness" is confusing because apartments aren't typically that large. In "A shopping centre is a mall of fun and food which power you," you don't explain how fun and food give power.

Exemplar: A shopping centre buzzes with laughter as families share meals and friends discover treasures together.

Your narrative shows creativity in using metaphors to describe different concepts and places. You've organised your writing into clear paragraphs that follow a similar pattern, which helps readers follow your thoughts. However, many of your metaphors use general words like "happiness," "joy," and "warmth" without showing what these feelings look like in action.

■ To improve your narrative, try using more specific details that appeal to the senses. For example, instead of saying "A home is a building of sweet joy," you could describe what joy looks like in a home—perhaps the smell of baking, the sound of laughter, or the comfort of a favourite chair. Also, make sure your metaphors match logically. When you say the ocean is calm but has waves, these ideas contradict each other. Additionally, some of your negative descriptions, like "death shooters" for the sun, are unclear and could be replaced with more precise language. Try reading your metaphors aloud to hear if they create clear pictures in the mind.

Overall Score: 38/50

Section 2:

Love is a soft warm cozy bed of everlasting happiness with the sensation like a pool in a hot humid day. A mother is like an abstract home of immense joy and warmth. Love is not a takeaway heatpack of artificial warmth. A mother is not a concrete home that you can buy with money.

A cafe is a warm hearth for people to relax and recharge. A restaurant is a haven for hunger nourishment. A cafe is not a small court with animals roaming around. A restaurant is not a ~~buisness~~ [business] bustling with hungry people.

#2 The ocean is a calm pool of liquid with waves of elemental coolness. The sun is a ball of relaxing heat which can brighten people's days. The ocean is not a vast creepy pool of drowning. The sun is not a large circle of death shooters.

Autumn is a cool period of time where the colour orange appears everywhere. Spring is a time of joy, where animals and plants dance in the breeze like ~~its~~ [it's] their birthday. Summer is a humid and hot season of intense heat and exhaustion. Winter is freezing period of crispy air.

#3 A shopping centre is a mall of fun and food which ~~power~~ [powers] you. A home is a building of sweet joy. An apartment is a building made of thousands of hearts of happiness. A school is a place where many hearts belong.

#1 ~~Love is a soft warm cozy bed of everlasting happiness with the sensation like a pool in a hot humid day~~ [Love is a soft warm cozy bed of everlasting happiness, bringing the refreshing sensation of diving into a pool on a hot humid day.]