

Section 1:

#1 Strengths: Your use of imagery with the "beacon of pure light" metaphor effectively conveys the library's importance. You create an emotional appeal by contrasting the peaceful library with the proposed noisy mall.

Weaknesses: Inconsistent sentence structure → Your opening paragraph contains several run-on sentences and punctuation errors that reduce clarity. For example, "This pure light of creativity, knowledge, information and imagination, guides us through our life and helps us find our way and lights up the darkest of nights." The spelling of "information" and the excessive use of "and" weaken your argument.

Exemplar: Dear local council, I am writing to oppose the unjust decision to demolish our library—a peaceful and calm beacon of creativity and knowledge in our community. This sanctuary of learning guides us through life and illuminates even the darkest nights.

#2 Strengths: You effectively appeal to authority by referencing historical geniuses who benefited from libraries. Your series of rhetorical questions effectively challenges readers to consider the value of libraries versus malls.

Weaknesses: Unclear statistical claims → You mention that "30% of all geniuses have indeed read a book from the library" without providing context or supporting evidence. The spelling errors ("geniuses," "injuanuity") and confused phrasing make your argument less convincing. The paragraph lacks focus as it jumps between different points.

Exemplar: Many brilliant minds throughout history, including Stephen Hawking and Albert Einstein, gained their knowledge through libraries. Would you rather preserve this source of wisdom and imagination that inspires countless people, or replace it with yet another ordinary shopping centre?

#3 Strengths: Your concluding paragraph effectively summarizes your main arguments about the library's importance. You emphasize the timeless value of libraries for people of all ages.

Weaknesses: Repetitive phrasing → Your conclusion repeats phrases like "imagination" and "creativity" without adding new information. The sentence "This structure is a source of creativity and knowledge that can lead to unimaginable amounts of imagination and information" is circular and doesn't strengthen your argument. The sign-off "Bye someone/ yusuf khan" undermines the formality of your letter.

Exemplar: In conclusion, our library serves not only as a functional space but as a historical landmark and a centre for community learning. It benefits people of all ages, from toddlers discovering picture books to seniors researching family histories.

Preserving this irreplaceable community resource will enrich our community far more than adding another shopping centre.

■ Your persuasive letter shows passion for saving the library, which is its greatest strength. However, your argument would be more convincing with better organisation and clearer paragraphs. Try focusing each paragraph on a single main idea with supporting details. Also, your letter contains many spelling mistakes and grammatical errors that distract from your message. You could improve by carefully proofreading your work or asking someone else to check it. Additionally, your comparisons between the library and mall need more specific examples of how the library benefits the community. You might mention specific library programs, resources, or services that would be lost. Your letter would also be stronger with a more formal tone throughout, including a proper greeting and sign-off. Finally, try to vary your sentence structure to make your writing more engaging.

Section 2:

[Library protection]

Dear local council,

I have written this letter to propose against the unjust choice of scrapping ~~down~~ [demolishing] a creative, peaceful and calm beacon of pure light... the library. This pure light of creativity, knowledge, ~~information~~ [information] and imagination, guides us through our life and helps us find our way and lights up the darkest of nights. This ~~monumental-sized~~ [monumental-sized] landmark must not be replaced by some mall that you can also find nearby. The need ~~of~~ [for] keeping the ~~mall~~ [library] ~~outweights~~ [outweighs] the need for a new mall.

Ever since the news was spread around, many people broke into outrage as ~~the~~ [they] protested in anger-fuelled anguish - [to] ~~To~~ save this monument of serenity. The library is one of the key structures of any great city. It's a place to run away from stress and enter an anti-noise building where you can read about mindblowing] nonfiction, and fiction ~~book~~ [books] that can take the ~~readers~~ [reader's] mind to a creative and imaginative dimension.

But scrapping down the library for a loud, noisy and practically another creation of traffic? Would you want to sleep knowing that you just ~~shred~~ [shredded] ~~thousands~~ [thousands] of people's ~~heart~~ [hearts] as they think that their place to escape to freedom has been scrapped ~~to~~ [for] a great chunky mall? How do you let an unreasonable great loud mall be the reason that some people grieve for such ~~an amazing a~~ [an amazing and] wonderful ~~has~~ [place that has] been taken away from their grasps? The serenity that they experience is unexplainable. Every day they sit there in the old ancient library chair and open the doorway to knowledge and creativity ~~open~~ as they immerse themselves into a grand world of pure imagination.

#1 Many historical ~~geniusses~~ [geniuses] like Stephen Hawking, Isaac ~~Newton~~ [Newton], Albert ~~Einstien~~ [Einstein] and ~~thomas~~ [Thomas] ~~edison~~ [Edison] got some of their ideas and knowledge from ~~librarys~~ [libraries] or books. Many people these days that are smart have most ~~definetely~~ [definitely] encountered many ~~book~~ [books] and ~~librarys~~ [libraries] and studied from the books of a library. The amount of people, that go to the library is indeed fascinating. Around 30% of all ~~geniusses~~ [geniuses] have indeed read a book from the library multiple ~~time~~ [times] or have even bought books for immense level of knowledge. Would you rather have a mall or creative ~~in~~ ~~injuauatity~~ [ingenuity] and ~~knowledge~~ [knowledge] ~~the~~ [from the] library? Would you rather have a [an] ~~external~~ [eternal] beacon of imagination that takes your breath away or a boring everyday mall that we have encountered many times? Would you rather have ~~external~~ [eternal] wisdom and knowledge or just spend your ~~many~~ [money] on everyday things. Would you sleep knowing that there are a lot ~~less~~ [fewer] ~~librarys~~ [libraries] than ~~mall~~ [malls] or parks or even both and you just let one of the few left become a [an] everyday mall?

Imagine what would happen if you did put the mall ~~down~~ there? The levels of traffic would be unbearably unreasonable as people wait in the never-ending ~~queue's~~ [queues] just to enter a pointlessly useless mall which could also be found close by the area. This additional mall would be the majority of ~~complaint~~ [complaints] that the noise is unbearable, the traffic is infinitely long and that the mall just took down a peaceful and grand monumental structure that surpasses the enjoyment of thousands. The mall would just be ~~and~~ [a] distracting obstacle for many.

#2 Did you know that around 20% of all the people actually go to the library every day for useful knowledge and ~~external~~ [eternal] wisdom. And out of ~~theses~~ [those] 20% of people, 50% of them actually learn new things in every book. The ~~usefulness~~ [usefulness] and ~~levles~~ [levels] of creativity would almost very easily surpass the need for a mall. ~~Did you know~~ [Did you know] that only 20% of the entire city goes to the ~~mall three~~ [mall three] times a week? The rest go once a week or even a month. You see, we don't need to have a mall when there is already one close by but, is there another library close by? No there is not. The mall would barely benefit the ~~community~~ [community] though on the other hand, instead of making a mall, you could keep the library or even enhance the capabilities of this wonderful structure of creativity and ~~injanuity~~ [ingenuity].

The mall ~~would also won't~~ [also wouldn't] be that functional. You see, there are many larger malls that are nearby that ~~they~~ surpass the usefulness of this mall. Plus, this mall will be ~~and~~ [non-]functional in the not-so-distant future. The mall instead would be seen as a problem. Many people ~~wont~~ [won't] like the noise levels of it, many people ~~wont~~ [won't] like the insane amount of traffic levels and many would also be unhappy that it's a useless place and that the council had ~~the~~ [to] level it down for this great, chunky, pointless ~~and~~ [mall creating] a memory that will cast sad ~~memory's~~ [memories] and anguish.

This is ~~unexceptable~~ [unacceptable]! We must stop this. This creation would destroy the string of hope, knowledge, entertainment and imagination. This wonder is slipping away from our grasp every year, it will one day become an old tale to tell about something great that humanity has shoved out of ~~it's~~ [its] way. Humanity will one day move far away from this thing and one day, if this still continues, the library would be ~~blury~~ [blurry] and unclear myth. This would one day become the stuff of dreams but one day ~~humainity~~ [humanity] will most definitely forget about it.

#3 In conclusion to sum up my points, I would like to remind you that the library not only serves in functionality, it also serves as a beacon of hope, ~~hainess~~ [happiness] and pure imagination and a historical landmark. The library would ~~enjoyed~~ [be enjoyed] by people from the age of 2 and throughout the rest of a being's lifetime. This structure is a source of creativity and knowledge that can lead to unimaginable amounts of imagination and information. This concludes my point that keeping the library will benefit this community and give many a place to run off into their wildest imagination.

~~Bye someone/~~ yusuf khan [Yours sincerely, Yusuf Khan]
