

Section 1:

#1 Strengths: Your piece effectively introduces the concept of equality through the "Equal Public Service treaty" with detailed descriptions of punishments for bias. You've created a well-structured foundation for your fictional country.

Weakness: Numerical overload → Your paragraph contains too many specific numbers and punishments that might confuse readers. For instance, "Biased opinions for 1-4 statements will be charged 200 Sints (1.7 AUD/per Sint) per statement" followed by other specific amounts creates a dense reading experience. The excessive detail about punishment tiers distracts from the main message about equality.

Exemplar: The Equal Public Service treaty ensures everyone has identical rights to public services. Judges, police, and other officials found showing bias face significant fines depending on the severity of their actions, while those taking bribes receive additional penalties.

#2 Strengths: Your description of the animals creates a vivid picture of Sintla Isles' biodiversity. The connection between animal protection and tourism revenue shows thoughtful world-building.

Weakness: Underdeveloped descriptions → While mentioning "astonishing crests" and birds that "transform into shapes," you don't provide specific examples or details about these unique animals. This creates a missed opportunity to truly showcase what makes the wildlife special. You tell readers the birds are amazing without showing them why through specific descriptions.

Exemplar: Some birds display rainbow-coloured crests that shimmer in the sunlight, while the shape-shifting Morphwing can fan its feathers into perfect geometric patterns that mimic local flowers to attract insects.

#3 Strengths: Your piece effectively explains how the government supports struggling families with a clear example scenario. The inclusion of monitoring organisations adds credibility to the system.

Weakness: Logical gaps → The description of SPOMMO raises questions about privacy and surveillance that aren't addressed. The statement "if you buy a gun in an illegal trading post, they are sure to report to SSPU" suggests constant monitoring of citizens' purchases without explaining how this would work or addressing potential concerns about such surveillance.

Exemplar: SPOMMO respects citizens' privacy while monitoring major financial transactions. Their limited oversight allows them to identify suspicious spending patterns like sudden large purchases before requesting government assistance, without tracking everyday buying decisions.

■ Your piece presents an intriguing fictional society with well-thought-out systems for equality, conservation, and social support. The ideas behind Sintla Isles show great creativity. However, many sections would benefit from more balanced descriptions. For instance, when discussing the monitoring organisation SPOMMO, you could acknowledge some limitations to their power to make the society seem more realistic. Also, the conclusion feels rushed compared to the detailed paragraphs before it. Try expanding your final paragraph to include more concrete examples of daily life in Sintla. You could describe a typical day for a citizen or visitor to help readers connect more personally with your world. Additionally, consider adding dialogue between citizens to bring your society to life through their perspectives. This would make your fictional country feel more lived-in rather than just described.

Section 2:

Sintla Isles, a country with the population of 8.7 million. ~~Sintla Isles has~~ [Sintla Isles has] a unique compartment of laws, these laws adapt to the environment. This country is truly special due to the cultural tapestry it holds. It's a utopia for animals that the biodiversity of them is infinite. Sintla Isles's constitution got everyone to sign and agree to some unique laws. You can count on Sintla Isles if you want to be treated equally.

#1 The Equal Public Service treaty ensures that everyone is equal. Everyone has the exact same right to access public services as you do. This law guarantees that no police, doctor/nurse, firefighter, or any job will be biased. Judges will not be biased based on skin, look, race, and gender, or else they will be punished. They do not take bribes from others and never will their case be biased due to relations with them or their friends.

Courts are always monitored so even the slightest of biased perspective will be captured. ~~Normally special~~ [Special] law officers educate judges to do right and fish out the wrong. Despite this training if they still show biased opinions they will be punished at certain levels. Biased opinions for 1-4 statements will be charged 200 Sints (1.7 AUD/per Sint) per statement; ~~is~~ [for] and above 5 biased statements will be counted as 60,000 Sints. Taking a bribe will add additional 70 Sints. A biased arrest will take 1yr and 2month of jail. These laws apply to police, judges, lawyers and all law or arrest-based occupations. Similar charges are taken if biased doctors/nurses, firefighters, or any important job are found. Feel free to report biased people who wield tinier jobs: such as cleaners who might not clean the floor for one student, repairers who don't repair for one. Jobs like these pay a 100 Sint fee, but jobs such as teachers or landlords that are biased take triple the charge; and you optionally get to have a free therapist for 2 months. This way the therapist can deal with trauma so when the victim grows up, they have a decreased chance of becoming biased. Despite the fees being exaggeratedly expensive, they stop people from making biased decisions, to both them and others; this is the secret recipe to a happy community, however this is only one ingredient.

#2 The Protection of Animals agreement protects animals of all kinds from extinction, this is probably the second-best law. This law protects the diversity of animals Sintla Isles has; birds are probably its most amazing animals. Some of their birds weld astonishing crests, or might have a variety of colors, some have weird but beautiful habits, some of them can spread their wings and transform into shapes, while others have it all. Any animal that is least concern or near threatened status can be hunted, ~~the~~ [the] status vulnerable and endangered, people must be given permission to hunt, and critically endangered and Extinct in the wild status must be always supervised and it is illegal to poach them. If you poach vulnerable without permission from an official you will be charged 110 Sints per kill, for endangered you'll be charged 130 Sints per kill. If you harm them without permission, you're charged 50 Sints and if you torture or capture them, you will be sentenced to 4 weeks of confinement. If you poach the critically endangered, you get sentenced to 6 months and 3 weeks of prison. If you poach Extinct in the wild animals, you'll be arrested for 1yr and 7 months. Additionally, if you poach or harm endangered, critically endangered, and Extinct in the wild you must donate 20,000-40,000 Sints to an organization supporting that animal. This too is a very tight strict law, but it prevents them from hunting animals and keeps people happy because they get to see the elegant animals of Sintla Isles. Tourists get to see these elegant animals therefore paying the government money through taxes. Then the government can spend more on tourism. This is a special sauce for later, in the recipe on how to make a happy community.

#3 The Job Finding and Compensation deal was made within the government's council. This law was firmly advocated by the legislative council. If your family is failing the government will lower taxes for your family and give the adults a job and money. Imagine if your family had only your mom, you and your brother, your mom just lost her job and now you are almost out of money, and your family can't support you, and you have no school. Due to this law in this situation, the government would lower taxes for you only, get your mom a suitable job for her skill, and the government would get you a school and pay for your school for 2 months; adding on that if you have no cloth or food the government will buy it for you. The payback rate is 5% off for example if you get 100 Sint support from the government, they need you to pay only 95 Sints once you get a job. However you can't purposely spend all your money to get free things, a unique company called SPOMMO ( Sintla's Payment Of Money Monitoring Organization) is on your tail, this organization was organized and paid by the government, they monitor what you buy or sell, therefore if you buy a golden statue with all your money then beg the government for money, they know what happened and won't give it to you. In this way if you buy a gun in an illegal trading post, they are sure to report to SSPU. The SSPU (Sintla's Special Power Unit) can break into houses and get control of evil doers. Once the scammers are caught, they are sentenced ~~a month and 4 weeks~~ [to two months] of confinement, plus an additional 1,000 Sint fee. However, if you donate your money to a charity the government will help you when you ask the government for support. The final ingredient will be mixed with the special sauce and the outcome is a great, prosperous, happy community.

Overall, Sintla is a great country that you should live in. You could see graceful animals, beautiful exotic birds especially. You'll be treated equally with no discrimination, and you'll be ~~courted~~ [judged] by a fair judge. And if you get poor and need help the government will compensate you, cheaper than the real price. So those reasons are why Sintla Isles has such a happy community and why you should come live here too!
