

Persuasive

Imagine a school when everyone is reading for 30 minutes? Nobody in the whole school is talking. That is why I strongly believe that every school should have time to read during the day for 30 minutes. Reading at school whether it just be picking out a Novel, Biography information text can benefit a lot. Reading can teach you important things like teamwork and kindness. Books can also help by expanding your imagination, writing and grammar skills. Reading books for 30 minutes each day could help you not get distracted.

Firstly, books can teach you very important skills, whether you help your classmate when they are hurt. Some may even link to their Genres.

Like if the book genre is friendship, maybe they repeat friendship may be repeated a lot of times. Sometimes if it is about kindness, they might give you tips on how to make your friend feel better when they are hurt.

Next, all books can help you improve your writing and grammar skills. Like if you are writing an information report about the Great Barrier Reef you might go and find a book about the Great Barrier Reef.

If you read books, you might discover new words and find the meaning so you can know more meanings for words. By reading for half an hour during school it can also help with your knowledge of spelling. Each book drags you into new worlds and that will certainly help improve imagination skills. With good imagination skills you can write amazing narratives.

Lastly, reading for 30 minutes each day could help you fidget less and not get distracted too often. Reading for 30 minutes can help you get over your fidgeting habits by making you sit and read without talking to anyone. That will help you fidget less. Fidgeting less during class can lead to better grades, better understanding of a variety of topics that you might be struggling with.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that all schools should add a 30-minute quiet reading time into their timetable. It can help students concentrate better. Teach important skills and help improve Writing, grammar, spelling, imagination and a larger variety of vocabulary. This is why I certainly believe that schools should consider adding 30 minutes of quiet reading time.
